Cultural Walk of Gaya Dharohar By Ankita Rath (IX I)

Saturday, 12th November 2022: The root of our nation is deeply embedded in our rich and diverse cultural heritage. Delhi Public School, Gaya organized a "Cultural Walk of Gaya Dharohar" to the holy Buddhist temple of Sujata Garh on November 12, 2022, which witnessed enthusiastic participation from the students of class IX. Sujata Garh, also known as Sujata Kuti or Sujata Stupa is located in the village of Senanigram (Bakraur) slightly east of Bodh Gaya. The stupa holds great significance in Buddhism. It is widely believed that a milkmaid, Sujata fed Lord Buddha with milk and rice and ended his seven years of fasting and told him to always follow the moderate path, neither too sacrificing nor too relaxing. We boarded our school bus along with our teachers at around 8:00 am to start our journey to Sujata Garh. We had an amazing experience of the Buddhist cultural heritage. On arrival at Sujata Garh, we performed a 'Parikrama' around the stupa to get a deeper insight into its origin. The teachers lucidly explained the significance of Sujata Garh in Buddhism. Close on the heels of an elaborate discussion with all the teachers and had our lunch under a tree. We met some foreign tourists from Vietnam and interacted with them. In consonance with the rituals, we lit candles and incense sticks on the stupa and made our wishes. The inscription engraved on the stupa enlightened us about its cultural heritage and history. After that, we all gathered together for a very enlightening session about the history of Buddhism and its proliferation as a religion. After the prolonged discussion on the history of Sujata Garh, we did three more 'Parikramas' around the stupa with the chanting of "Buddham, Saranam, Gachhami". Cultural Walk of Gaya Dharohar By Sanskriti (IX A)

Saturday, 12 November 2022: India's rich and diverse cultural heritage is a source of immense pride for us. It is a confluence of disparate cultural and religious beliefs. Delhi Public School, Gaya organized a "Cultural Walk of Gaya Dharohar" to the holy Buddhist temple of Sujata Garh on November 12, 2022, which witnessed active participation from the students of class IX. Sujata Garh, also known as Sujata Kuti or Sujata Stupa is located in the village of Senanigram (Bakraur) slightly east of Bodh Gaya. The stupa holds great significance in Buddhism. It is widely believed that a milkmaid, Sujata fed Lord Buddha with milk and rice and ended his seven years of fasting. We boarded our school bus at around 8:00 a.m. to start the journey to Sujata Garh. We had an amazing experience of the Buddhist cultural heritage. The stupa was noticeably large and had a peepal tree on it. The inscription engraved on the stupa enlightened us about its cultural heritage and history. According to the inscription, the stupa was built during Pala and Gupta Periods between 8th and 9th century A.D. It was fully recovered by two excavations in 1973 and 2001. We were left disappointed since all the artifacts discovered were kept in the possession of the Archaeological Survey of India (ASI). The hemispherical stupa was made of baked bricks which severely withered over time. In the wake of entering the temple premises, we did a 'Parikrama' of the stupa. After that, we all gathered under a tree and the teachers apprised us of other things such as Nalanda University and the spread of Buddhism as a religion and its worldwide influence. The discussion elongated to the last days of Gautam Buddha. When Gautam Buddha was on his deathbed, he told his disciple, Ananda to spread his remains across the land and build stupas around them to proliferate his teachings around the world. The discussion gave us a deeper insight into the history of Sujata Stupa. We also got acquainted with three types of Pitakas i.e. Suta Pitaka, Vinay Pitaka and Abhidhamma Pitaka. The discussion also underlined Buddha's exhortation to attain salvation. After the prolonged discussion on the history of Sujata Garh, we had our lunch followed by three more 'Parikramas' with the chanting of "Buddham, Saranam, Gachhami". Team DPS Gaya embarked on its return journey to the school after the group photograph.

भ्रष्टाचार

भ्रष्टाचार, एक बड़ी समस्या,
करनी होगी हमें तपस्या,
अपने देश को भ्रष्टाचार से मुक्त कराने के लिए,
अपनी भारत माता का गौरवान्वित करने के लिए,
तभी देश के प्रत्येक नागरिक को होगा अपने भारत पर गर्व।
वे लोग एक साथ हर्षोल्लास से मनाएँगे सभी पर्व।
भ्रष्टाचार ही जड़ है, बेरोजगारी की,
गरीबी की और बेकारी की।
हमें इस जड़ को मिटाना होगा,
अपने भारत को स्वर्ग बनाना होगा।
